

SNOW SCENE ▶

It was a very snowy day in Ohio when this photo was taken at my Grandpa's backyard.

*Ashley Schackow
Defiance, OH*

ICICLE ▶

I was getting ready for school one day when I happened to look out the window to see this. I love how the color of the sunrise filters through the clear ice, distorted, but beautiful because of it. I stood with bare feet in the snow, crammed against the wall to get this photo, but it was worth it!

*Elizabeth Watts, 13
Oconto, WI*

BABY MOOSE ◀

This picture was taken in Alaska. The baby was by the road. The mom was close by.

*Joel Tocholke, 12
Greenville, OH*

GREEN MOTH ▲

This green moth was fluttering about on our hearth. It was just a common moth, but what intrigued me was its shimmering green wings. As it flipped this way and that, the sunshine would strike green, then silver, green, and silver again. It looked like it was made with silver dust.

*Judienne Faith Santos
VIC Australia*

RED-BELLIED WOODPECKER ▲

As I often do, early in the afternoon I decided to take a nature walk with my camera. The walk starts in my own backyard and goes through a forest to a pond behind our house. As I was walking off our deck, this Red-Bellied Woodpecker landed on a nearby tree. I captured two photos before she flew away.

*Caleb Royer
Mountain View, MO*